Box III TEXT OF THE ABSTRACT (Continuation of item 5 of the first sheet)

In most households the electrical geyser is one of the major electricity consumers. This patent provides an alternative method of heating a fluid typically water, only using electricity while water is flowing. The invention provides a method of heating a fluid which includes the step of passing said fluid along a flow passage (14) defined within a tubular electrically resistive heating element (12). An effective and electricity saving means for heating a fluid particularly water for industrial and/or domestic purposes is provided. A current regulator may be added to the heating element (12) to heat a fluid particularly water to a specific temperature for a specified flowrate.
